

Dear Partner,

We are pleased to announce that we are organising the first Budapest Geothermal Energy Summit on 5 June 2023 in Budapest, Hungary.

The Budapest Geothermal Energy Summit is a unique initiative that aims to explore the potential of geothermal energy in Central and Southeastern Europe by connecting the different segments of the industry and strengthening the cooperation between the stakeholders of the geothermal sector.

The Budapest Geothermal Energy Summit will be opened by:

Csaba Lantos, Minister of Energy of Hungary

Speakers who already confirmed their attendance at the event:

- Miklos Antics, President of the European Geothermal Energy Council
- Károly Mátrai, CEO of MVM Group
- Eirikur Bragason, COO of Arctic Green Energy
- Tamás Pazsiczky, Director of Deloitte Hungary
- Prof. Maria Mutti, President-Elect of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists (AAPG) and Professor of the University of Potsdam
- Gábor Molnár, Managing Director of Mannvit

We will continuously update you about the new speakers of the conference

What is it about?

Geothermal energy is bound to become the bedrock of energy transition and long-term energy security as a clean, local and affordable energy source. Hungary and the Pannonian Basin have a vast untapped potential for geothermal energy that can contribute to phasing out fossil fuels and support energy independence. In order to ensure the uptake of the industry, stakeholders must work closely together. The Budapest Geothermal Energy Summit aims to contribute to this goal by showcasing best practices from Hungary and the whole region.

Who you can meet there?

The Budapest Geothermal Energy Summit will bring together high-level policymakers, industry experts, corporate leaders, technology pioneers, regulatory bodies, financiers, local decision-makers, and representatives of research and academia from the region and beyond to discuss the potential of geothermal energy.
